

OUR BEGINNING

The NCCU School of Law Virtual Justice Project began in 2010 in response to a federal and state initiative. The Virtual Justice Project provides vital education and services to many underserved communities throughout the state. In order to deliver these services, NCCU School of Law partnered with four historically black colleges and universities, and 22 legal services sites to reach undergraduate students and hundreds of predominantly rural program participants.

We're expanding legal education to underserved and underrepresented communities across the nation.

BRINGING VIRTUAL JUSTICE TO YOUR COMMUNITY!

EXPERT-LED LEGAL LITERACY SESSIONS

Through North Carolina Central University's "Know Your Rights" series, we're bringing expert advice and legal literacy content on a variety of topics directly to you and the community you serve.

EQUIPMENT & SOFTWARE

We provide the equipment and software your site will need to operate.

VIRTUAL & ON-SITE MARKETING

Your success is our success. We will provide your site with marketing materials such as promotional posters and informational flyers.

ONGOING SUPPORT

Aside from general maintenance, we will conduct regular meetings with site leaders to address concerns and provide ongoing support and information.

By partnering with NCCU and the Virtual Justice Project, you agree to:

- Provide facilities, parking, and internet access sufficient enough to accommodate video conferencing.
- Provide staffing for activities.
- Display VJP promotional materials.
- Participate in periodic planning and/or evaluation meetings.
- Provide an audience for the programs.
- Leverage marketing to make sure the public is aware of your status as a VJP site and its programs.
